New England's Monthly Numismatic Catalog

Special Coin Market Analysis Inside

If you've been following the numismatic and financial press, you've undoubtedly heard a lot of talk about the "readjustment period" that the rare coin market is currently experiencing. Many collectors have greeted this readjustment period with delight since rare coin prices are, on average, estimated to be 35% lower than they were a year ago during the peak of last summer's numismatic boom. However, there has also been some concern expressed by collectors who wonder how this readjustment period will affect the long-term values of their collections. This issue of Inventory Selections presents a special analysis of rare coin market trends by Dr. Joseph deMarinis, President of the Sinclair deMarinis investment firm. All collectors with an interest in current coin market trends will be intrigued with what Dr. deMarinis has to say.

In this month's issue, you'll also find a special article on U.S. commemoratives. Struck from 1892-1954, these coins are known for their diverse artistic beauty, historic merit and long-term financial potential. Though the series has been relatively quiet on the market for the past two years, experts are already predicting significant price gains over the next few months. This is the first of several articles highlighting individual coin denominations.

New England Rare Coin Auctions, a division of New England Rare Coin Galleries, is smoothing out final details for two sales scheduled next month in New York City. On April 4, the Don Warner Collection of Political Memorabilia — an unusual assortment of campaign items — will be auctioned in conjunction with the Metropolitan New York Numismatic Convention. The auctions division is also conducting the Metropolitan New York Sale on April 9-11, featuring rare items from the descendants of a 19th century New England collector. For a preview of offerings at both events, refer to the Market Report page in this issue.

Free subscriptions are still available to New England World Selections, our bi-monthly ancient and world coin catalogue. To subscribe, call your New England numismatist or send us your name and address.

FLYING EAGLE CENTS

1856, PROOF-67, TONED. Although considered a "regular issue" (design officially adopted Feb. 21, 1857), this pattern was originally struck and presented to various important businessmen and key congressmen of the time, so that the intended design might be seen as a coin, and influence key officials to vote for the passage of it into law. Breen estimates between 1500 & 2000 were minted. Long recognized as a rarity, the 1856 Flying Eagle Cent is gaining new popularity partly due to the Beck hoard being sold in such a way as not to depress the market. Our example is of the type: Rev. D; high leaves, center dot below serif of "N", relief vlines in maple leaves; obv. 2, thin date, heavy 1, open E's & 6. Toned a golden-tan color. No imperfections or slide marks, fully reflective fields compliment this exceptional piece. Light rev. finger mark, mentioned for identification purposes.

A special series profiling
New England Rare Coin Galleries' numismatic experts.

Kent Loose

Deciding what he wanted to do in life was never a problem for numismatist Kent Loose. As he tells it, "I graduated from high school on a Thursday and went to the beach Friday, Saturday, Sunday and Monday. Tuesday I had a job interview. And Wednesday I started working on coins."

That was at Bowers and Ruddy Galleries, Inc., in Los Angeles in 1974, and Kent has been immersed in the coin industry ever since, working in "photography, auctions, purchasing, selling; just about everything." By 1980, he had been promoted to chief numismatic buyer and purchaser for Bowers and Ruddy.

It was Kent's diversified background that brought him to the attention of New England Rare Coin Gallery's President Jim Halperin when Halperin needed someone to work with financial planners.

"I really take pride in the fact that my diverse training makes me especially useful to financial planners. They come to me for help in assembling the best possible portfolios for their clients, and I feel well qualified to do that. Since I've worked in so many aspects of the business, if a financial planner has a question, I generally have the answer."

Kent builds investor portfolios on the basis of how much a client wants to spend and how long the coins will be held. He determines which coins will be the best buy, and then sends out yearly evaluations which monitor each portfolio's performance.

Kent never recommends that clients put all their money in coins. "We suggest they diversify their holdings and allot only 20-25% to coins, which are then selected very carefully. After all, these clients are putting all their trust in us and in our reputation."

Kent is currently living in Framingham. In addition to his lifelong interest in numismatics, he also enjoys fine woodworking, travel, photography, and most sports. But his chief interest remains coins, and the fact that he's being paid to work with his hobby is, for Kent Loose, the best of all worlds.

The Rare Coin Market: Explaining Rare Coin Price Cycles

by Dr. Joseph deMarinis
President, Sinclair & deMarinis & Co.

Reprinted by permission of the author from the February, 1981, issue of the newsletter of Sinclair deMarinis & Co., an affiliate of the James Sinclair Companies, 90 Broad Street, New York, NY 10004.

Last month, Inventory Selections reported that the rare coin market is experiencing a period of readjustment. Many coin series have stabilized in value. Others have taken a dip in price. In fact, rare coin values are, on the average, now about 35% lower than they were at this time last year.

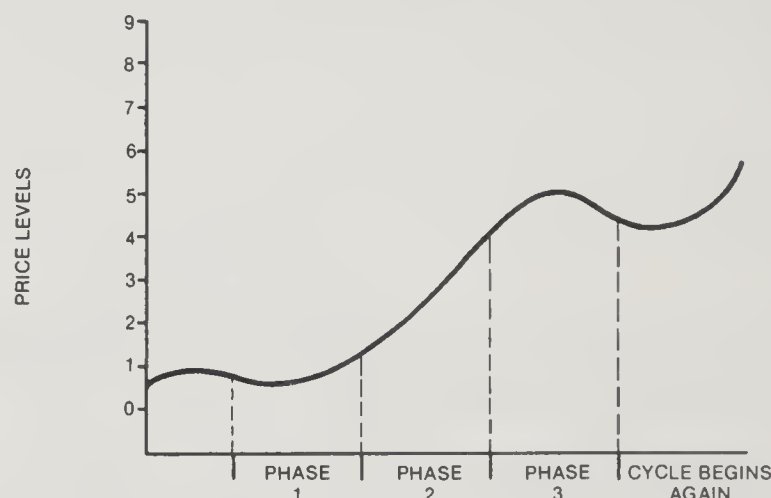

What does this readjustment period mean for the coin market over the long term? Experienced market analysts know that readjustment periods are not new to the rare coin market. Such periods occurred in 1956, 1966 and 1976. However, after each readjustment period, the market has always risen to continually higher plateaus. Thus, while the market may experience short-term dips, its long-term path has always been upward. Many experts feel that buying rare coins now is almost like buying them at a 35% discount.

This is why many market watchers believe 1981 is an excellent time to buy rare coins. History has shown that the best time to find rare coin bargains is while the market is at the bottom of its cycle. One such market watcher is Dr. Joseph deMarinis, President of the New York investment firm Sinclair deMarinis & Company. In a recent article, reprinted here by permission of the firm, Dr. deMarinis explains the different phases of coin market cycles, beginning with the "readjustment" or "quiet" phase and concluding with the "public participation" phase.

The coin cycle, or trend, consists of several definitive phases in both the so-called bull bear coin markets. In the upward coin market cycle there is the quiet phase or inactive market: In this phase we find very little activity or interest and coins do not move much creating discounts from the usual bid prices. It is a time of many real bargains. The next phase may be termed the accumulation period: In this phase there seem to be two time frames, one in which the professionals, sometimes called the insiders, are able to detect special coin areas that have remained stable in price for longer periods of time. Dealers are offering to buy these coins at close to the ask price. Others have discovered underpriced choice coins, the so-called "sleepers". These coins become scarce as the "pros" accumulate them. At this point the dealers begin to realize the demand and commence to offer, via the teletype system, the trade publications, etc. to purchase these coins at higher prices. Public awareness then sets in and the interest quickens after the insiders and the dealers have accumulated the best of these coins, whether they be type coins, series sets, or individual rarities.

Public participation: The entry of the public into the market causes choice rare coins to become even more popular and active. Scarcity causes the prices to advance rapidly. Perhaps even doubling or tripling in price the popularity of these coins in this phase becomes touted as excellent investment coins. The coin then continues to advance rapidly, the demand becomes tremendous and the "pros" begin to sell and take profits. The prices begin to peak, i.e., level off, and as the public has entered the market for these coins at top, prices interest wanes, prices ease and some of the hottest issues could sell off as much as 20 to 30 percent. Bear in mind that the price rise was, in some instances, as much as 300 to 500 percent. These coins once again enter the quiet phase and the cycle commences all over again. Throughout all these cycles from 1950 thru 1980, each cycle ended and began at a higher plateau. The trend underlying all the recordable cycles has been higher — for example, a coin may lose 20 to 30 percent after the peak, but its price range is higher than the previous cycle.

Coin cycles differ from most economic phenomena for several reasons. Firstly, the inelastic or fixed supply due to the published records of the original mintage. Secondly, the scarcity in each mintage, which is limited to those coins surviving the origin mintage. They become scarcer as the quality of the grade or condition becomes higher. Thirdly, the collector always remains the underlying buying base no matter what happens in the short term, nor where we may be in the cycle. The collector amassed his collection for aesthetic and personal reasons and usually would sell only in a distress situation. Collectors date back centuries and the collections are usually passed down from one generation to another. They are constantly upgraded and added to over the years. These outstanding collections have as a result, become the underpinning of the market place, primarily in the auction houses. Witness the famous collections that have been auctioned in the past several years. Mostly all have come from famous families who possessed them for many generations.

There are 3 phases to each coin market cycle. (1) The quiet phase, marked by market inactivity. (2) The accumulation phase, where insiders purchase stable coins and sleepers. Prices here begin to rise. (3) The public participation phase, where the public, excited by price rises in phase 2, begins to buy for investment. At this point, the market generally peaks and the cycle begins again.

High quality rare coins become less and less visible in the marketplace. Coin cycles contribute to the decrease in the number of choice coins available at the completion of each cycle. Reason: The choice coins purchased by the "pros" during the quiet period at much lower prices hardly ever enter the market again for many, many years.

Conclusion: The coin strategy that has proven successful as a result of the study of coin cycles is long-term thinking and committing one's self to at least a three to five year period. This type of commitment has produced the greatest rewards in the form of profit and concomitant pleasure. We believe that coin cycles in the future will be shorter due to the rapid and universal communication systems being refined and expanded, e.g. Teletypes for numismatics and philatelics (stamps), the news media, investment firm entry, and the development of a coin and stamp bourse, where one may witness instant coin sales similar to the stock and commodity exchange bourses. It is an exciting, pleasurable, educational, profitable, family participant vehicle for investment that should be a serious part of everyone's financial commitment. Those who carefully commit a percentage of their investible assets in a diversified portfolio of rare coins and are prepared to commit themselves for three to five years will undoubtedly reap the greatest rewards.

I'm interested in sending my coins to a dealer for appraisal, but am leery of sending them through the mail. However, since I have no choice, can you tell me the safest way to mail coins? — D.J., Berla, OH

The key rule here is also the most obvious: pack your coins as carefully as possible. Specifically, that means enclosing them in 2 x 2 coin holders, which should then be secured between two pieces of cardboard, placed in a package and securely sealed.

It's a good idea to mail your coins via either registered or certified mail since all registered parcels are fully traceable from the time they're mailed until they're received. Registered mail is especially recommended a safer bet for valuable coins since a package is insurable for a value specified by the sender, up to $25,000.

Finally, it's very important to enclose a letter fully identifying your coins and the reason for their being sent, along with instructions for their return. Although New England does not require return postage, many coin dealers do, and you should check with each before sending your coins.

Since $2 bills were reissued for the Bicentennial, I've noticed that, despite Treasury hype, they seem to have dropped out of circulation. What is it that keeps the $2 bill from general acceptance, and is the Bicentennial issue worth holding on to? — M.F., Aspen, CO

$2 bills have been issued periodically since 1776 when they were first produced by the Continental Congress as "bills of credit for the defense of America." The most recent printing before the Bicentennial series was the series of 1963 when the bill suffered from low public demand and a popular belief that it was unlucky. In fact, one of the only places the $2 note did well was at racetracks where the minimum bet was $2. Bettors commonly tore corners off the bills to "break the hex."

Despite the general unpopularity of this denomination, the Treasury tried again in 1976. Once again, though, the public refused to accept the bills and instead began hoarding them as investments. But too many of the Bicentennial issue were printed and too many have been saved to make them a collector's item.

I have recently been offered an 1856 Flying Eagle Cent with I was assured was genuine. However, I know that there are many counterfeits of this coin on the market, and would like to know just what I should look for to determine authenticity. — P.B., St. Louis, MO

You're right to inspect your coin carefully. First, check the lower half of the '6' in the date. If it's thick, the coin is probably an altered 1858.

Look also at the '5', which should slant slightly to the right. The vertical part of the numeral should point to the center of the ball beneath it. If the vertical bar points outside the ball then, again, the coin is probably a camouflaged 1858.

I was recently given an 1880 Morgan Silver Dollar and am confused by the large 'M' that appears on both sides of the coin. Isn't it uncommon to have the engraver's mark appear on both sides of a coin? — S.V., Cazanovla, NY

Though this is uncommon, it is not unique to this coin. Minted from 1878 to 1904, and then again in 1921, the Morgan Silver Dollar was engraved by George T. Morgan, who became chief engraver at the Mint in 1917. The silver dollar was his best known work and featured his initial at the base of Liberty's neck on the obverse, and on the left loop of the ribbon on the reverse.

However, the Eisenhower Dollar, minted from 1971 to 1974, then from 1976 to 1978, has the initials of engraver Frank Gasparro on both the obverse and reverse. The Kennedy Half Dollar, minted from 1964 to 1981, has the initials of engraver Gilroy Roberts on the obverse and those of Frank Gasparro on the reverse.

Just out of curiosity, what is the current status of the Susan B. Anthony Dollar? Has there ever been a comparable numismatic fiasco? — R.W., Vineland, NJ

In recent history, Susan B. stands alone as a mintage misstep. Issued in 1979 and 1980, the Susan B. Anthony Dollar was immediately repudiated for too closely resembling the quarter. While there has been some recent talk of reissuing the dollar in another color that would set it apart from the quarter, chances are the coin will simply be dropped.

A lesson might have been learned from the similar experience of the 20-cent piece that was minted from 1875-1878. Like the Susan B. Anthony, that coin was also dropped because of its resemblance to the quarter.

Other notable coinage flops were the 19th century 3-dollar gold and 3-cent silver pieces which never gained public acceptance. The 3-dollar gold piece was minted specifically to enable people to buy 100 3-cent stamps with one coin!

I am interested in a statement concerning capital gains taxes made in the Numismatic Forum section of the Feb. 20, 1981 issue of Inventory Selections. The statement made was, in effect, that if a long-term capital gain was reinvested in a like kind asset, the gain was not taxable. My understanding of the tax law is that your statement is true in the case of a sale of a principal residence or in the exchange of like kind assets, but not in the case of a sale and subsequent reinvestment as outlined in your example. Please send me more information as to the basis for your interpretation. — G.H., Nashua, NJ

Our response to the original question in Numismatic Forum was a bit unclear, and we apologize for any confusion it may have caused. To clarify: If a coin is purchased and then held for a minimum of 12 months before it is resold, the profits from that sale are taxed, although with favorable long-term capital gains treatment. This is true even if the money from the sale of the coin is reinvested in like assets. If, however, a coin is exchanged for like assets, with no money involved, then there is no tax on the disposal of the coin.

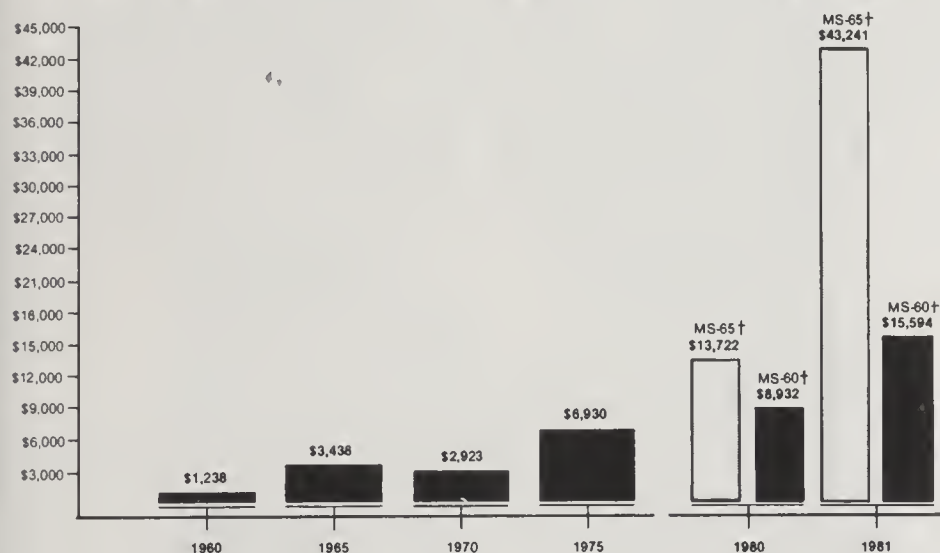

U.S. Commemoratives: Treasures of our Heritage

by Russell P. Vaughn
Director of Numismatic Research with Ann Marie Reis

(This is the first of several in-depth articles on individual coin series.)

U.S. commemorative coins, viewed as one of the most challenging coin series to collect, feature a unique blend of aesthetics, history and financial potential. Each commemorative is an interesting artistic record of the progress of this country and commemoratives, in general, are considered excellent long-term assets in this time of economic uncertainty. Though the series has been relatively quiet during the past two years, commemorative prices move in a cyclical fashion like other coin denominations. Experts are already beginning to see these coins ride the next wave to higher price levels.

Appreciation Chart* for U.S. Silver Commemoratives

Appreciation Chart* for U.S. Gold Commemoratives

*Appreciation figures are based on A Guide Book of U.S. Coins (Redbook) by R.S. Yeoman and represent price averages of 50 silver commemoratives.

†Prior to 1980, the Redbook did not distinguish between MS-65 and MS-60, but simply listed both grades as Uncirculated.

Various forms of commemoratives have been around since the days of ancient civilization, but it was not until 1892, about 100 years after the first U.S. coinage was struck, that commemoratives were introduced in this country. As we know them, these coins are special government issues honoring or observing a person, place or event. They are minted by the federal government, considered legal tender, and bear the same standards for size, weight and fineness as business strike coins. Events observed on commemoratives range from the nationally significant — such as the 1923 Monroe Doctrine Half Dollar — to the obscure — such as the 1935 Hudson, New York, Sesquicentennial Half Dollar (celebrating the founding of the city of Hudson, New York). From 1892 to 1954, a total of 48 U.S. silver commemorative half dollars, one quarter and one dollar were issued to make up a 144-piece variety set. U.S. gold commemoratives include nine $1 pieces, two quarter eagles ($2.50) and two $50 pieces. Despite the fact that hundreds of applications for new commemorative issues are submitted annually to the federal government, officials have refused to authorize any additions to the series. In 1975-76, special Bicentennial quarters, half dollars and one dollar pieces were struck by the U.S. Mint, but these coins are not part of the commemorative series. (See related story.)

Commemorative coins were introduced in this country primarily out of a financial need connected with the 1893 Columbian Exposition in Chicago, scheduled to celebrate the 400th anniversary of the discovery of America by Christopher Columbus. The exposition's board of directors had raised millions of dollars for the event through the sale of bonds, but they found themselves $5,000,000 short. The board then appealed to the federal government for aid, but Congress, already bogged down with other bonds to pay off, decided to help out by melting subsidiary coins and recoinng them into souvenir half dollars. In the end, a bill was passed authorizing $2,500,000 in half dollars — exactly half the amount originally asked for. The board, in turn, sold the coins at double the face value to regain the necessary money. A precedent was set. From that day forward, all other commemorative coins have been sold at a premium.

Sold as Souvenirs

Many view the inception of commemorative coins as giving impetus to the rare coin industry in this country. Prior to the 1893 Chicago exposition, the rare coin market was in its infancy. Coins were mainly collected by individuals who had a great deal of numismatic knowledge. Rare coin information networks and publications were just beginning to be established. In 1891, for example, the American Numismatic Association (ANA), which is now the largest non-profit numismatic organization in the world, had just been founded. And despite the fact that several major coin sale displays were set up at the Chicago exposition, it was the introduction of the Columbian Half Dollar and Isabella Quarter that piqued the general public's interest in coins. The exposition Board of Lady Managers sponsored the Isabella as a result of Susan B. Anthony's efforts to have women represented at the fair. Thousands of both these commemorative issues were sold as souvenirs or jewelry, and hundreds of individuals were introduced to the concept of coin collecting.

After the Chicago exposition, many of the Columbian coins (total mintage: 2,498,000) were left unsold. One syndicate offered to buy 100,000 of the coins from the U.S. Treasury, only if the additional commemoratives were melted down. The government rejected this proposal, and thousands of the unsold coins were released into general circulation at face value. The Isabella Quarters (mintage: 24,214) originally sold for $1 at the exposition — the same price as the Columbian Half Dollars. But because of the premium, these commemoratives were not as widely accepted as the Columbian coins. However, instead of placing these coins in general circulation, the federal government sold them to coin dealers at wholesale prices. Coin publications pushed the coins as "good investments" and their prices rose to $1.50 each. But the supply was greater than the demand and the price levels eventually dropped. It was not until the 1930's that the Isabella Quarter, then valued at $5, began a second ascent to higher price levels.

Other types of commemoratives were issued sporadically until shortly after the Depression, when various organizations latched on to the idea of selling these coins to raise money. From 1934-39, a flood of commemoratives were produced by the U.S. Mint. In 1936 alone, more than a dozen new issues were struck. This surge directly coincided with an overall growth period in the coin market. In fact, some experts feel that the commemorative "boom" actually caused the market increase. It was during this period that the 1935-D and S Boone set (honoring the 200th anniversary of the birth of Daniel Boone) with a small '1934' in the field was announced in a premature news release, causing nearly all the 2,000 pieces to be sold to speculators before the official sponsoring commission announcement. The entire mintage of the 50,000 1935 Rhode Island Tercentenary Half Dollars (celebrating the 300th anniversary of the founding of Providence) was sold out hours after the coins were up for sale. A set of the 1936 PDS Cincinnati Musical Center Half Dollars (honoring the 50th anniversary of Cincinnati as a center of U.S. music), originally priced at $7.75, jumped to $50. Commemorative coins were being sold at unprecedented price levels.

However, by 1939, interest in commemoratives had waned, partially because collectors were unwilling to pay the prices. As advertisements in numismatic publications became less frequent, prices dropped, then stabilized. It was not until 1954 that price again began to rise. One example: the Cincinnati set again broke the $50 level in 1954. Today the set is valued at well over $2,000.

A Look at our Heritage

Over the years, commemoratives have drawn many collectors who enjoy history and art. Because no other U.S. coin denomination changes designs more than every 25 years, commemoratives offer an aesthetic diversity far surpassing that of other series. Federal restrictions on coin designs, such as including the motto "In God We Trust" and the American eagle, did not apply to commemoratives, consequently, outstanding artists had more freedom to express their ideas on these issues. The Oregon Trail Half Dollar is a fine example. This commemorative, first minted in 1926, was designed by James and Laura Fraser and honors the 20,000 heroic pioneers who died along the Oregon Trail on their way to settling the Western part of the country. The obverse of the coin shows an Indian facing right, his arm extended as if he is opposing the Western advance of the white man. The background has the outline of a U.S. map, with a tiny line of Conestoga Wagons in the Northwest portion of the map. The reverse of the coin shows a solitary Conestoga wagon heading westward toward a setting sun. The Oregon Trail Half Dollar — considered by many as one of the most beautiful U.S. coins ever minted — gives us a unique look at our heritage.

Besides being known for their aesthetic value, commemorative coins have shown impressive financial gain over the years. According to A Guidebook of United States Coins (Redbook), by R.S. Yeoman, an Uncirculated type set of silver commemoratives (50 pieces) cost $1,238 in 1960. Today, the set is valued at over $50,000 in MS-65. Similarly, an 8-piece type set of gold commemoratives, valued at $592 in 1960, is now worth more than $30,000 in MS-65.

Today, many collectors and investors specialize in commemorative type coins instead of varieties. This allows the collector to seek out the most common and inexpensive coins of a particular design. For example the 1922 Grant Memorial Half Dollar (mintage: 4,256) in MS-65 condition, one of the most difficult commemoratives to find, is listed at about $4,300. Some experts say less than 20 of these specimens exist today in "true" MS-65 condition or better.

In general, there are few Gem Uncirculated commemoratives on today's market. As in the case of the Columbian Half Dollar, many issues were released into circulation and the coins suffered mishandling by the non-collecting public. Others, like the Isabella Quarter, were widely advertised as "good investments" in coin publications and have been snapped up by speculators. One other contributing factor to the limited number of commemoratives on today's market is that, in general, original mintages are low compared to other coin series. And because many issues were distributed to non-collectors, the supply of Gem Uncirculated coins is much lower than mintages indicate. For years, the 1921 Alabama Centennial Half Dollar, 2 x 2 variety (mintage: 6,006), sold for almost double the price of the Alabama plain variety (mintage: 59,038), which was distributed for the most part to the general public. Many of the plain variety have been mishandled over the years, while the 2 x 2 variety has been handled more carefully by dealers and collectors. The remaining supply of both issues is about equal on today's market, and the price gap between both is just beginning to close.

Bicentennial Coinage

To honor America's 200th birthday, the U.S. Mint struck special Bicentennial quarters, half dollars and one dollar pieces in 1975-76. These coins, however, are not considered part of the commemorative series because the obverse design of the three issues is identical to current business strike coinage, except for the 1776-1976 dual dating. The reverse designs of the coins were taken from winners of a national contest sponsored by the U.S. Treasury. For the quarter, officials selected the design of a Colonial drummer, with a victory torch encircled by 13 stars in the upper left corner. The reverse of the Bicentennial Half Dollar shows Independence Hall in Philadelphia, while a design of the Liberty Bell, superimposed on the moon, is featured on the reverse of the one dollar pieces.

These coins were struck for general circulation, as well as for Proof and Uncirculated mint sets. It is interesting to note that the total mintage of the Bicentennial coinage numbered nearly two billion — far exceeding the total of all commemorative coins previously issued by the U.S. Mint.

Market Report

by Tim LaPointe

At the shows

If the Suburban Washington D.C. Coin Show, held last month in Lanham, Maryland, is any indication, it seems that collector faith in the rare coin market is beginning to regain strength. Attendance at the show was good, and business was more active than at shows in preceding months. A healthy number of collectors and dealers were seeking circulated type coins in the $250 and under category. Commemorative Half Dollars and Silver Dollars in Mint State condition were also popular items. Many uncirculated gold type coins were snapped up at the show, partially because they are currently available at attractive price levels.

Gold

Gold bullion is currently at $490, up about $10 since our last report. Bullion-related items, such as Maple Leafs and Kruggerands, have experienced parallel price fluctuations.

Brisk trading activity surrounds Quarter Eagles, Half Eagles and Eagles from the late 1795-1812 period. Uncirculated Indian Half Eagles and Indian Eagles, as well as Liberty Head Quarter Eagles through Eagles in MS-60 to MS-64 are moving strongly. This seems to be the result of the low availability of such pieces in MS-65 or better. In addition, the prices on lower grade uncirculated gold often make them better buys.

One point of interest: The Coin Dealer Newsletter (the gray sheet) has begun listing prices for MS-63 coins in the U.S. gold category. This new addition to gray sheet listings has resulted from the substantial price gap between MS-60 and MS-65 coins.

Silver

Silver bullion, at $12.25 per ounce, has virtually remained at the same price level since our last report. The strongest demand in the silver collectible coin area lies in Silver Dollars in MS-65 — particularly Carson City issues which are commanding premiums well above current retail bid levels. One 1894 Morgan Silver Dollar in MS-65 recently traded hands at the wholesale level for over $6,000.

Peace Dollars are also showing signs of increased market activity. Brilliant Uncirculated Silver Dollars rolls and common-date Washington Quarter rolls have suffered slight price reductions.

Commemoratives

Most dealers are reporting that their want lists include Commemoratives in the under $2,000 range — particularly the 1928 Hawaiian Sesquicentennial Half Dollar, the 1893 Isabella Quarter and the 1900 Lafayette Dollar. Commemorative gold pieces in exceptional condition are also commanding slight premiums. However, buyers are insisting on strictly graded MS-65 coins or better for both gold and silver commemoratives.

Currency

The currency market in general continues to show solid price advances, particularly in the area of fractional currency. Because of a strong collector base and scarcity of material, demand plays a large role in the pricing of this material. Fractional currency appeals to the collector/investor interested in putting together a complete 25-piece type set for as low as $10,000 — $12,000. Yet the rarity of Gem Uncirculated material makes this a challenging area to delve into.

Small-Size Notes, particularly pieces under $300, are actively being sought in numismatic circles. This material is more readily available on the market than Fractional Currency. The demand is also strong for Large-Size Notes in Choice EF to AU condition. The gap between Uncirculated and these grades, however, is beginning to close.

World Coins

The recent influx of new world coin collector/investors shows this area of numismatics is on strong footing. While many new collector/investors are converts from other collecting areas, a number of individuals have been guided to world coins by the "International Green Sheet." Competition is fierce for Proof and Choice coins on the world coin marketplace. One example at a recent auction is a Spanish 1773 8-reales in Proof that was estimated at $2,700, but reached a record high price of $20,000.

NERCA Conducts Two Auctions

A host of unique political campaign items and more than 2,100 lots of rare and valuable coinage will highlight two sales conducted in April by New England Rare Coin Auctions. The Don Warner Collection of Political Memorabilia — featuring campaign buttons, ribbons, medals and tokens dating from George Washington to the mid-20th century — will be auctioned on April 4 in New York City, in conjunction with the Metropolitan New York Numismatic Convention. Less than a week later, on April 9-11, New England will conduct the 1981 Metropolitan New York Sale.

The Warner memorabilia, valued in excess of $300,000, is one of the largest private collections of its kind ever offered for public sale. Three Cox-Roosevelt jugate celluloid buttons, dating back to the 1920 campaign when James Cox ran for President with Franklin D. Roosevelt as his running-mate, will be auctioned at the sale. Other key items include a number of classic pieces from the Abraham Lincoln campaigns of 1860 and 1864, such as an ambrotype portrait (on glass) of Lincoln set in a gilded brass frame. Several intriguing items from the Teddy Roosevelt era will be auctioned, including a group of "Equality" pins showing Roosevelt entertaining black educator Booker T. Washington at the White House.

Included at the Metropolitan New York Sale will be a hard-to-find 1795 Flowing Hair Bust Dollar, Fine-12, the only collectible date of this historic two-year type. An original hoard of forty-seven 1853 Large Cents, MS-63 to MS-65, most which have retained their full mint red glow, will also be made available. An array of Colonial pieces includes a 1791 Washington Cent, Large Eagle, MS-65, an unusual specimen in this state of preservation. The sale will also include a wide selection of U.S. Currency, such as the excessively rare 1899 $1 Silver Certificate Proof on card, and an offering of over 200 lots of ancient and world and foreign coinage.

In 1976, 407,283 silver dollars were purchased for $7.3 million from the estate of millionaire LaVere Redfield. This was the world's largest private numismatic transaction — later recorded in the Guinness Book of World Records and in countless national news stories. Today, New England Rare Coin Galleries offers a special selection of Morgan Dollars from this historic hoard — each hand selected by our own numismatists.

1849 OPEN WREATH, AU-58.	360.00
1850-C, AU-55, PROOFLIKE. Breen states: "Very rare." A mintage of 6,966. Any gold coins struck from either of the South's branch mints (Charlotte or Dahlonega) are scarce, rare and very underrated. These coins (any denomination) are characteristically weak or softly struck. This coin is superior to most exhibiting this date. Strong, even strike and problem-free planchet. Akers notes: "The rarest collectible "C" mint gold dollar. Unc's are very unobtainable and strict AU's are very rare."	3,950.00

LIBERTY HEAD EAGLES

1839, VF-30. Desirable from the standpoint that this design was made for only 2 years. A type coin. Problem-free and evenly worn. This date is considered rare by Akers in any grade. Mintage: 25,801.	1,300.00

1857-O, EF-45. Has the 3rd lowest mintage of any "O" mint eagles, both Breen and Akers call the coin VERY RARE in any grade. Some mint lustre visible around coin's periphery and stars. Mintage: 5,500.	2,950.00
1864, EF-40. Rare and underrated.	2,950.00
1865-S, VF-25.	1,100.00
1865-S (865 OVER INVERTED 1866), VF-30. Faint lustre within legends and around stars. An interesting error, since the first three numerals of the date were punched upside down then corrected by repunching them in their proper position. Scarce.	1,750.00
1869, EF-40, RARE. Medium copper-red periphery toning over original mint lustre preserved by the coin's devices. Of R-6 to R-7 status, the coin is very rare in any condition, according to gold expert D. Akers. Mintage of just 1,855 pieces, sure to sell quickly to the astute gold collector.	2,950.00
1869-S, EF-40. Both Breen and Akers call the coin "rare." Akers states "Very rare in any condition, most grade VF or less." Ours is a problem free attractive circulated example. Mintage: 6,430.	1,450.00
1871-S, EF-40. Nice problem-free coin for grade ("S" mint mark very weak). Breen notes "Very rare and not available above VF to my knowledge." Akers notes "Extremely difficult to obtain better than VF, most Fine to VG." Remaining mint lustre around protected devices.	695.00

MS-65. Fully brilliant, well struck and unusually free of the normal light to heavy abrasion seen on type one twenties. Light gold copper toning. Rich full unbroken mint lustre accents this superior specimen — rarely seen so nice. Two copper tone spots on obverse don't detract from the overall beauty of this piece.	25,000.00

1879-CC, EF-45. With a low mintage of only 10,708, this coin rates as highly elusive when offered. Usual contact marks are present, none detracting, however. Much original mint lustre present. Overall, an attractive piece and worth.	1,945.00

1893-CC, AU-55. An attractive example of this rare and underrated Carson City Twenty. With a mintage of just 18,402, this coin is one of the more elusive dates seen. Exhibits Semi-Prooflike fields, and highly lustrous surfaces. Last year for Carson City twenties.	2,950.00

Collecting ancient and world coins is one of man's oldest hobbies. The Emperor Nero collected coins from Greece. Fourteenth century Italian nobles collected Roman coins. English gentlemen of old considered the study of ancient coins a crucial part of a proper education. Today, ancient and world coin collecting is the fastest-growing area in numismatics.

Inventory Selections is proud to present the following offerings of ancient and world coins taken from the latest issue of New England's bi-monthly world coin catalog, New England World Selections. When ordering, please refer to the "W-numbers" that appear before each coin listing. If you'd like a free trial subscription to New England World Selections, which offers New England's entire ancient and world coin inventory, call or write to New England Rare Coin Galleries.

Our Complete Numismatic Services

1. Guarantees

☐ Grading

We guarantee that coins purchased from us are graded correctly and will meet our high standards when you wish to sell them. Further, we guarantee to purchase these coins at the same grade at which they were sold, or sell them for you at auction cataloged at the same grade at which you purchased them.

Our grading system is patterned after that of the American Numismatic Association's numerical grading standards. Where appropriate for greatest accuracy, additional intermediate grades are also used. Our designations are:

Poor	1
Fair	2
About Good	3
Good	4,6
Very Good	8,10
Fine	12,15
Very Fine	20,25,30,35
Extremely Fine	40,45
About Uncirculated	50,53,55,58
Mint State	60,63,64,65,66,67,68,69,70
Proof	60,63,64,65,66,67,68,69,70

Slash grades indicate obverse/reverse designations. For example, a grade of 65/63 describes a coin with an obverse of Mint State-65 and a reverse of Mint State-63. Mishandled Proofs will be graded as any circulated coin, and may be classified as Proof-40 (denoting an Extremely Fine coin) or Proof-55, etc.

☐ Authenticity

We further guarantee that all coins sold by New England Rare Coin Galleries are authentic. To protect our customers, and as proof of our certainty that no altered or counterfeit coin can escape our attention, we guarantee to refund the full purchase price plus 15% compound annual interest, on any non-authentic coin acquired from us.

☐ Documentation

These guarantees are issued in writing with all coins purchased from New England Rare Coin Galleries. Each written guarantee is personally endorsed by two professional numismatists.

☐ Satisfaction

If, for any reason, you are not satisfied with your purchases, you may return them within 45 days of the date you received them for a full refund or replacement.
